Memorial Weekend Gets Under Way

By Don Allen

THE first long holiday weekend of the year—the Memorial Day observance—started for many area residents yesterday. In addition, area highways were jammed with city residents, encouraged by good weather, en route to various resorts in the Poconos.

Most stores and other business establishments will be closed Monday to permit employees to enjoy the holiday. So will some factories.

Both local post offices will be closed, as will offices in Monroe County Courthouse and other county offices.

Poppies On Sale

Buddy poppies were being sold by both American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars representatives during the past week to honor those who, while not dead, are still recuperating from war wounds in hospitals. Boy Scouts and representatives of veterans' organizations decorated the graves of all county veterans in preparation for the observance.

The sharp crack of rifle volleys and the wistful notes of "Taps" will be heard in cemeteries throughout the county, as throughout the nation.

Numerous area residents plan trips to cemeteries to decorate the graves of loved ones—veterans and non-veterans alike.

Parade Stated

In the Stroudsburgs, the observance will begin with a parade starting from Maple Ave., East Stroudsburg at 2 p.m. Units are to assemble at 1:30 p.m.

The parade will move down N. Courtland St. to Crystal St.

to Washington St. to the American Legion home, where a wreath will be placed at the monument and military honors presented.

The parade will then cross the interborough bridge and proceed up Main St. to Eighth St., north on Eighth St. to Monroe St. and east on Monroe to Courthouse Square where a program will be presented.

James R. Marsh, Monroe County district attorney, will be the master of ceremonies and the memorial address will be given by Col. Lester W. Kale, commander of Tobihanna Signal Corps Depot.

The program will also include a memorial service by the Monroe County Joint Memorial Committee and music by East Stroudsburg High School Band.

In the event of rain, all units will report to Stroud Union High School for services. Earl R. Palmer, former American Legion commander, is chairman for the program.

Ike Orders End To Aid To Cuba

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has ordered an end to U.S. economic aid programs in Cuba within 180 days, the State Department announced Friday.

Eisenhower's slap at Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime is the toughest yet since the bearded Cuban launched his bitter anti-American campaign.

Officials said the U. S. government decided to shut down the aid projects because Castro has shown no interest in their continuance and because they seemed to be accomplishing little in improving U.S.-Cuban relations.

agriculture experiments, involving six U.S. experts, officials said. Americans arms aid to Cuba was cut off before Castro came to power on Jan. 1, 1959, except for the training of a few military pilots. U.S. authorities said the last two of the Cuban pilots are slated to finish their training at the Corpus Christi, Tex., Naval Air Station by June 30.

By far the largest U.S. government assistance to Cuba, even though indirect, remains intact. This is the U.S. sugar law which benefits Cuban growers by some 150 million dollars a year through payments for Cuban sugar far above world market prices.

Under '60 Law

Eisenhower acted under a 1960 foreign aid law provision calling for a halt to assistance to Cuba unless the President finds it to be in the interest of the United States and of the Western Hemisphere.

The White House directive actually applied only to two comparatively small programs that have totaled about $150,000 to $200,000 a year. The projects involved aid to Cuba's civil aviation system, with the help of three U.S. technicians, and aid to Cuban

Slashes Quota

Legislation now pending in Congress to extend the Sugar Act would continue this heavy subsidy, although the administration's bill would allow a slashing of Cuba's quota if the U.S. government decided to do so later.

Even though the Eisenhower order, dated May 14, involved only a comparatively small amount, it was a sizable blow diplomatically. This country gives technical aid to all other Latin-American countries, and the action announced Friday was the first finding that aid to a Latin nation is not in the U.S. or American hemisphere's interest.

Police Catch Flag Nabbers

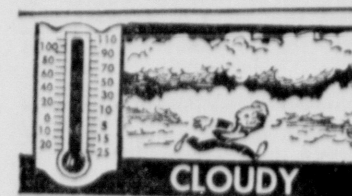

STROUDSBURG Police apprehended three boys last night that had removed the flags from the graves of veterans buried in the Stroudsburg Cemetery. The ages were seven, eleven and thirteen.

The children were brought into the local headquarters and released in the custody of their parents.

Turks Hail Menderes' Ouster

President, Aides Placed Under Arrest

By GARVEN HUDGINS

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Jubilant Turks cheered throughout the streets Friday, hailing military leaders for ousting the dictatorial Premier Adnan Menderes.

Menderes and many of his ministers and parliamentary supporters were under arrest following the early morning coup.

A military spokesman hinted the deposed Premier might be put on trial.

The head of the new ruling military group declared he has no desire to become a dictator.

Open News

Newspapers silenced by Menderes' increasingly arbitrary regime were told they could resume publishing immediately. Under Menderes many editors had been summarily imprisoned. Announcements said all public officials will return to their normal duties Saturday. Military commanders were ordered to insure that the situation in the country remains normal.

Restrictions on landings at Turkish airports, imposed during the day, were lifted.

Throughout the nation the population reacted with relief at the overthrow of Menderes' government. In Istanbul, civilians embraced members of the armed forces in the streets. There were tears of joy from youthful demonstrators who had spearheaded protests against the Menderes regime.

There also were cheers when Lt. Gen. Cemal Gursel, an old soldier recently tossed out by Menderes as head of the ground forces, announced in a special communique that Parliament had been dissolved. New elections were promised "soon."

Heads Group

Gursel heads the group of high-ranking air force, army and navy officers who set up "the Turkish National Union Committee."

The rebellion that ended the 10-year Menderes' regime after weeks of unrest and demonstrations started in Ankara just after midnight.

TWU Strike Against PRR Fizzles

NEW YORK (AP)—A threatened strike by the Transport Workers Union against the Pennsylvania Railroad fizzled out Friday. A 4 p.m. projected deadline passed with no signs of a walkout.

TWU President Michael J. Quill said in Chicago Thursday that there was a strong likelihood that 25,000 of his members would quit work in a wildcat strike. He pictured the union as striving to hold the members in check.

But after the deadline Friday a spokesman in New York said "our people were instructed not to strike." He described the flurry of excitement arising from Quill's statement as "a misunderstanding."

Forbidden

Actually, the TWU is forbidden under federal law from striking.

Desperation In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The earth-shaking that has killed thousands and remade the topographical map of Chile in a week of disaster continued Friday amid a great effort to relieve the hunger and misery of survivors. Earthquakes and volcanic violence still spread terror over southern Chile.

At one illustrative point on a vast panorama of pathos, police had to fire warning shots over the heads of disaster victims who in the desperation of hunger had tried to pounce on emergency food stocks set up for orderly distribution at stricken Valdivia.

Herter Says:

Eisenhower Took Spy Flights Burden

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter testified Friday that President Eisenhower took personal responsibility for spy flights over the Soviet Union to avoid a trap set for him by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Furthermore, Herter told critical senators, it was better to tell the truth about the flights—once Khrushchev had evidence to prove them—than to be drawn deeper and deeper into a lie before the world.

But he acknowledged the President took unprecedented action in making a clean breast of the affair and assuming responsibility for the espionage operations.

The secretary of state was lead-off witness in a hearing called by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in an effort to get to the bottom of the U2 spy plane incident and the causes of the summit failure in Paris May 16. Testimony is being given behind closed doors, with transcripts made public after security censoring.

Herter denied that Soviet capture of a wrecked U2 spy plane and its pilot May 1 was wholly responsible for the collapse of the summit conference 16 days later. But he conceded it was a factor.

He also denied that it was Eisenhower's personal role which triggered the summit explosion. Khrushchev used the U2 incident to blow up the Big Four meeting and tried to put the blame on Eisenhower, Herter declared, adding: "The assumption is that he had received his orders before he went to Paris."

The administration had first denied the plane downed May 1 was on an espionage mission. Then in a series of statements beginning May 7 it admitted the fact.

One of the questions the senators pressed on Herter was why Eisenhower had not held aloof from the affair and avoided personal responsibility.

Khrushchev had said he thought the President was not directly responsible. If Eisenhower had accepted that way out, it has been argued, Khrushchev might have been willing to go ahead with the summit meeting.

UN Security Asks Resumption Of 'Four' Talks

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Security Council called Friday on the Big Four powers to resume negotiations on major East-West issues with U. N. help. But the U.S.-Soviet exchanges that preceded the vote raised doubts the action would have any immediate practical results.

The vote was 9-0 with two abstentions on a four-nation resolution aimed at ending a week of angry debate on a harmonious note. The abstainers were the Soviet Union and Poland.

Last-minute diplomatic maneuvering avoided an outright Soviet veto.

The resolution, as adopted, avoided any specific reference to halting of aerial spy flights as demanded by the Russians.

General Plea

It contained a general appeal to all governments "to respect each other's sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence, and to refrain from any action which might increase tensions."

Fresh in the minds of U.N. delegates was Friday morning's clash between U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Lodge declared internal political pressures caused the Soviet Union to provoke the crisis over the U2 spy plane incident with the aim of creating a pretext for a new zig-zag in foreign policy.

He lashed out at Gromyko for charging that President Eisenhower's policies had brought mankind to the brink of war. He said internal pressures appeared to be dictating Gromyko's course.

He added that the only other possible explanation is "that Mr. Gromyko has taken leave of his senses, and I do not consider that this has happened."

Used Kind Words

Gromyko recalled to the Council that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has used kind words about Eisenhower in the past, but said the United States could not expect such expressions now.

The Soviet foreign minister had previously described the resolution as "toothless" and "pointless" without a specific condemnation of aerial spying.

The resolution, submitted by Ecuador, Ceylon, Argentina and Tunisia, expressed regret at the collapse of the summit conference in Paris. It contained these additional main points:

1. Recommended that the Big Four seek solutions of international problems by negotiation, or other peaceful means as provided in the U. N. Charter.

2. Appealed to all U. N. members to refrain from use or threats of force in international relations, to respect each other's sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence, and to refrain from action which might increase tensions.

3. Requested continuation of negotiations for "general and complete disarmament," and also on discontinuance of nuclear weapons and guarding against surprise attack.

4. Urged the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union to "resume discussions as soon as possible, and to avail themselves of the assistance that the Security Council and other appropriate organs of the United Nations may be able to render to this end."

Some of the angriest words came when Lodge and Gromyko clashed in the closing stages of the debate on the resolution.

Japan Awaits Ike Visit

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's government notified the United States Friday it intends to stand by the invitation for President Eisenhower to visit Japan in June regardless of noisy nationwide opposition from left-wing groups.

The declaration came amid concern about the treatment the President and Mrs. Eisenhower may receive from demonstrators. The demonstrators now are at the height of frenzied efforts to block the new U. S.-Japan security treaty.

Sunday School Lesson

Not From This Earth Treasures In Heaven

By Newman Campbell
I AM introducing this lesson by quoting from the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith's Peloubet's Notes. He writes: "One of the great basic factors of our Lord's teaching is that He talks about the problems of ordinary life, and in doing so, He frankly and constantly faces the realities of daily living, the need for making a living, our relationship to money and property and to others with whom we live and work."

He talks about food, drink, labor, wages, marriage as well as the glorious themes of God, salvation and eternity. In the verses assigned to our lesson, we see something of our Lord's teaching about our relationship to earthly possessions, and His warnings regarding the danger and tragic consequences of putting primal emphasis upon the things of this earth."

Jesus said: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal."—Matthew 6:19.

Don't we sometimes read in our newspapers of men or women who hoard money in their homes, and thieves do break in and steal?

What was Christ's teaching on this subject? "But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."—Matthew 6:19-21.

"Christ does not say it is wrong to lay up. The common capacity to which He is here appealing is that of the passion for possession," writes G. Campbell Morgan, in Peloubet's Select Notes.

"The worldly man thinks he himself holds these things; but the Christian starts by saying, 'I am not the possessor of these things, I merely have them on lease and they do not really belong to me. I cannot take my wealth with me. In a sense all these things are given to me, but I am a custodian of these things.' And at once the great question then is, 'How can I use these things to the glory of God?' . . . It is to Him I will have to render an account of my stewardship of all the things with which He has blessed me."

We cannot send bags of gold to heaven, for heaven does not need them, but we need not hoard our wealth (if we have accumulated it by hard work, as millions of people all over the world have done and are doing today). We can help good and worthy causes, or friends and relatives who are needy.

Jesus Christ said: "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon (money)."—Matthew 6:25.

"Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?"—Matthew 6:25.

Then Christ reminded them that God fed the fowls of the air and created the lilies of the field which show such glorious colorings that "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

"Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, what shall we drink? or, wherewithal shall we be clothed? For your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things."—Matthew 6:31-32.

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matthew 6:33.

We have not space for the parable Christ told of the man who had worked hard, accumulated great possessions and sat down to enjoy them, but whom God told that he would die that night. The teacher can tell the story if there is time.

Faith and service to God and man are emphasized, and a life that is dedicated to Christ's teachings.

The pastor stated "The promise of salvation is always made to the overcomer, the one who successfully completes his Christian life, not to the one who starts and does not finish."

000 physicians, dentists, nurses, and other medical specialists will receive the attention and support of thousands of Adventists across the continent today. THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Galatians	5	1
Monday	Psalms	119	44-48
Tuesday	I Peter	2	13-20
Wednesday	Romans	8	31-39
Thursday	Romans	12	1-9
Friday	Romans	12	10-21
Saturday	Romans	15	1-7

Our future presidents and prime ministers — from what spiritual heritage shall they arise?

The ultimate giants of science and industry — what faith will they profess?

The fathers and mothers of our grandchildren and great-grandchildren — what convictions will be taught in their homes?

All this we are deciding today . . . in our churches . . . in our families.

For one generation can bequeath only to the next that which it, itself, possesses.

Our own religious life, our own determination to provide our children with thorough spiritual training, our own faithfulness in filling our churches with families — these positive purposes, expressed Sunday after Sunday, will mold TOMORROW'S LEADERS.

Liberal Spenders

A step-up in East-West tensions has brought about a new clamor among the spenders in Congress to increase federal expenditures to meet possible threats of aggression.

These spenders are the people who, when there's a recession, say we should spend to get money into circulation. When times are good we should spend, they say, because we can afford it. The collapse of the summit conference gives this group its latest excuse for spending.

Nobody in the West, except maybe Cyrus Eaton, ever thought the summit conference was likely to produce an end to the cold war, and our defense plan certainly hadn't been scaled down in anticipation. The collapse of the summit talks leaves us just where we were, except that Khrushchev has reneged on his threat to make a quick separate peace with East Germany, thus giving us a breather in the Berlin situation.

While the real threat is no worse, the summit collapse was noisy, and alarming to those who jump at strange loud sounds.

Secretary Gates has said that we will constantly analyze how the defense budget will be spent so as to keep up with the times, but the present total figure is enough, thank you. It's sensible to observe that each new program is likely to make an old one obsolete, and that both old and new programs need not be carried on.

Watch Washington closely. From now on, anyone who wants to spend your tax money for anything at all will plead that the cold war makes it necessary, no matter how remote the connection.

Reminds us, somehow, of the trick that mediocre vaudeville actors used to have of waving the flag to win applause that their own talents didn't merit.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Legislators In A Vacuum

A considerable time ago the Internal Revenue Service ruled that business expenditures for advertising and lobbying which have a bearing on legislative matters cannot be considered a legitimate business expense and so are not deductible for income tax purposes. The primary target has been the electric utility industry which is literally involved in a struggle for survival with the socialized power groups. However, other enterprises have been affected too.

The IRS, despite many protests and extended hearings, has refused to change its position. So, it is believed Congress must act. Rep. Boggs has proposed the addition of a paragraph to the Internal Revenue Code reading as follows: "Expenses lawfully incurred in supporting or opposing or otherwise influencing legislation in the Congress or in a State's legislature or in the legislative body of a county or other local governmental agencies or in submission of proposed legislation to the voters, shall be allowed as proper deductions from gross income."

Nowadays legislative questions are often the most important questions with which business must deal—and the utilities are certainly not alone in this. If business can't express its view on critical legislative matters, except at a heavy tax penalty, we have accepted censorship by taxation—which must be repugnant to everyone who believes in free speech, a free press, and freedom generally.

The Sioux Falls Argus-Leader summed up the problem tersely and well when it said: "Legislators cannot operate in a vacuum. To say that they should be insulated from the ideas of business, labor or anyone else undercuts the American way."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Water Problem

One of the most serious political and social problems of universal concern is water. In this country, we generally assume that water is a free resource for all to use, air and water.

It is not always true. In some parts of the world, water is so scarce that it has to be used sparingly and treaties are made concerning it. Marco Polo (1254-1324) wrote a description of his travels from Italy to Peking and back. He describes many rich areas, with gardens and farmlands. Some of the areas are now deserts and they are deserts because the water upon which their richness depended has disappeared.

The question as to whether the water table of the United States is falling is not subject to opinion; it is a matter for study and the production of accurate statistical data. On August 12, 1958, the House Comm-tee on Government Operations recommended:

"The Office of Saline Water must substantially increase its efforts in advancing both basic research and pilot plant work in the saline water conversion program."

"Such effort would be facilitated by amendment of the Saline Water Act to eliminate the financial authorization restrictions now present in that act and by appropriation of sufficient additional sums to enable such work to proceed promptly and without deferment."

Nothing has been done about this recommendation but the need for such research is great. It is estimated that the available fresh water supply in the United States amounts to about 515,000,000,000 gallons a day and that we are now using about 312,000,000,000 gallons a day.

The water supply is not evenly divided over the United States and in some areas there is a definite shortage. If the population and the industrial development of the United States continue to increase, there ought to be a very serious water shortage in the country in 1975 which is only 15 years away.

The time to consider this is now. In 1967, the United States suffered from a water shortage which struck 47 states. More than 1,000 cities and towns in 1967 had to restrict the use of water.

The simplest solution to this problem is the adaptation of salt water to current needs. The cost is still very high but the quantity is unlimited. Considerable research is required to bring the cost of desalinated water down to a reasonable price. Several plants already exist to distill water and the results are very satisfactory.

The alternative to the conversion of salt water is to limit use, which would be unsatisfactory. The United States is surrounded by water—the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the Gulf of Mexico—water everywhere.

It ought to be possible to develop a salt water distillation for usable water, to be carried in pipe lines across the country, so that there would be a shortage nowhere. This is a feasible plan only if it is developed slowly and correctly and does not have to become a crash program where an actual drought is in existence.

The Secretary of the Interior has been put in charge of this program by an Act of Congress passed in 1952, with a considerable budget for research and experimental plant operation.

All this work is to the good because when it is possible to convert salt water into usable water, the United States will have all the water that is required for individual use, farm and industrial use at a reasonable cost.

This is the objective and it does not need to be justified by fulsome attention to what other nations that lack water will say about it. It will be sufficient that we sensed a crisis, met it by careful research and experimentation and averted calamity.

I have lived among people who have inadequate water supply. I have seen their soil blown away by cyclonic winds. I have seen women carrying water on their shoulders because water is one of the most precious ingredients of life.

We need not ever face such condition if we devote ourselves to converting the apparently unlimited supply of salt water to sweet water, usable for all purposes. It can be done and thus far, the experiments have been bringing the cost down. It could be that the mineral products taken out of the water would, in the long run, return great wealth.

Social Security Guide

Q. My husband who is paralyzed has been receiving social security disability benefits for about a year. He had to wait six months after his stroke before his benefits started. Why did he have to wait?

A. This is a specific requirement in the law. Payments cannot be made for temporary disability. In most types of disability, it can be determined within six months if the condition will be permanent or only temporary.

Q. A friend recently told me that I could get social security benefits for the two months I was off from work last year due to pneumonia. Is this correct? I am 55 years old.

A. No, your friend was wrong. Only persons who have permanent disabilities can qualify for disability payments. Temporary sickness or disability is not covered under the social security law.

Reports from Congress

Lend Bill Hits Snag

By Congressional Quarterly

Washington—One of the few bills in Congress of direct interest to every consumer is now locked in committee, and there is some doubt that it will emerge before adjournment.

This is the "truth-in-lending" bill, introduced by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D Ill.), which would give everyone who buys "on time" the knowledge of what he pays for credit.

Installment buying has skyrocketed in recent years; in 1959 alone, the public took out $48.5 billion. At the end of the year, almost $40 billion worth of installment debt was outstanding.

According to Douglas, however, "because of varied and misleading methods of stating finance charges, over one-third of the American public simply does not have a definite idea, accurate or otherwise, of what installment credit costs." And of those who do have some idea, he says, many think the cost is less than it actually is.

Douglas' bill would require anyone who extends credit to give the customer a written statement itemizing all charges showing the total dollar cost, and translating that cost into "the percentage that the finance charge bears to the total amount to be financed expressed as a simple annual rate."

The bill was approved April 28 in subcommittee, with four Democrats in favor and three Republicans opposed. But there is no assurance that it will be approved by a majority of the full Senate Banking and Currency Committee. The nub of the issue is that "simple annual rate."

Six Percent "Fiction" — Little outright opposition has been voiced to the principle of disclosure. As Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R Utah) remarked during hearings on the bill, "this is one of these things you cannot be against because you cannot be for sin." Bennett voted against the bill, nevertheless, as did one of its original sponsors, Sen. Prescott Bush (R Conn.).

Their reservations and those of the business community in general are clearly focused on the "simple annual rate" provision. This would require the retailer who charges 1½ percent per month for a revolving charge account to inform the customer that he was paying 18 percent per year. This could have catastrophic results, William J. Cheyney told the subcommittee.

"The public very generally has a concept of 'interest' which cannot be extracted from the expression '6 percent per annum,'" he said. Although "it never was a rate of charge on consumer transactions," the "fiction" persists "that 6 percent per annum is interest and that interest is 6 percent per annum."

Given this situation, he said, any merchant or lender who acknowledged that finance charges were considerably higher than 6 percent per year would "stamp himself in the public mind as unscrupulous, unreasonable, a 'high rate' in fact, as perhaps in some way 'crooked.'"

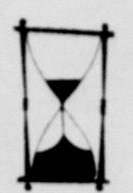

Since businessmen could not afford to alienate their customers in this fashion, Cheyney said, the net effect of the proposed law "would be to drive the true cost of credit under ground, intermingling it in price confusing the public far more than any reasonable number are confused today."

Retailers, he said, would return their earlier practice of incorporating their credit costs in their prices, again making the cash customer foot part of the bill. And any cash customer who borrowed from a bank to pay for his purchase would be paying twice for credit.

Proponents of the Douglas bill deny that it would have such a revolutionary impact. They contend, on the contrary, that it would have a healthy effect on competition and, by making consumers aware of the costs of installment buying, help to prevent any over expansion of indebtedness, thus promoting economic stabilization.

They are especially unwilling to abandon the "annual rate" provision, although such a concession might guarantee quick passage of the bill. Unless enough votes can be rounded up to get the bill to the Senate floor in its present form, it is more than likely that the entire matter will be put off until next year.

The Allen-Scott Report

Harris Probe Ending

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Rep. Oren Harris is starting to ring down the curtain on his sensation-explosive investigating committee.

Under the Arkansas' unanimous decision, there will be no further public hearings by the probe — whose jarring disclosures in the past three years cost Sherman Adams his top White House job, John Doerfer the chairmanship of the Federal Communications Commission, exposed the rigged TV shows the payola scandals, and most recently the numerous private conferences of natural gas officials with members of the Federal Power Commission.

Instead, from now until Congress adjourns, Harris proposes to concentrate on preparing "final" reports and drafting legislation to "eliminate abuses" in the regulatory agencies.

In line with this "phasing out," five staff investigators have been told they are being dropped as of July 1. Other dismissal notices will follow.

Lack of funds is the immediate cause of this backstabbing slashing.

As Harris explained to the other committee members, most of the $250,000 voted the probe in January has been spent. It is his intention to use the remainder to wind up the investigation.

For this purpose, he has directed the committee's staff to immediately conclude and submit reports on inquiries that have been for some time in progress on the Interstate Commerce Commission, Securities & Exchange Commission, and Civil Aeronautics Board.

What will be done with these findings will be decided by the committee.

Whether they will be included in its final reports or pigeon-holed remains to be seen.

Still unpublished are staff findings on three dynamite-loaded cases — involving charge of "improper influence" in the Aeronautics Board, "conflict-of-interest" in the Securities Commission, and alleged "underworld influence" in the granting of trucking permits.

Meanwhile, Harris has some good news for the House Commerce Committee.

As its chairman, he is arranging free transportation for all the members to the Democratic convention in Los Angeles in July. This generous offer applies to the 11 Republicans as well as the 21 Democrats.

All they have to do to get this free transportation is attend committee hearings on smog that Harris is slating in Los Angeles at the time of the convention.

Just as simple as that, and perfectly legal and within their rights!

So far, none of the Republican committee members have indicated any intention of attending these smog hearings.

Of Arkansas' eight members in Congress (two senators and six representatives), Harris is the lone delegate to the Los Angeles convention. Leading this delegation will be Governor Orval Faubus.

Pentagon Boss — Real head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff now is Defense Secretary Thomas Gates. With ailing General Nathan Twining, Joint Chiefs Chairman, due to retire soon, Gates is actually filling that role. He not only participates in discussions of major decisions, but has a big voice in making them.

Gates meets regularly with the Joint Chiefs every Monday afternoon, and carefully reviews key problems before them. Brigadier General James Hittle, legislative assistant of the Marine Corps, has told congressional leaders, "Secretary Gates' innovation is the most important thing that has happened in the services."

The Air Force is having an exceptional opportunity this Summer to make a favorable impression on thousands of youths from all over the country. The Boy Scouts Jamboree is taking place directly across the road from the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Social Whirl — Louisiana's veteran Senator Allen Ellender scored a resounding hit with Washington newspapermen by treating them to a luncheon he cooked himself. It consisted of shrimp creole with Louisiana shrimp.

A bachelor, Ellender is renowned for his culinary skill, which he displays in a "hide-away" high under the Capitol dome. It's a historic room that in earlier times was used as an office by Daniel Webster and John Calhoun.

Besides a superb view of the Mall and Washington Monument, the tall-ceilinged chamber has a beautiful chandelier and fireplace, which Ellender sometimes uses for cooking.

Something new in wedding cakes was displayed at the wedding of the daughter of Ceylonese Ambassador and Mrs. Gunewardene. It consisted of a four-tiered creation covered with lotus flowers, and two small doors on the bottom layer, which opened on slices of rich fruit cake.

During the traditional ceremony, the officiating authority observed genially, "Of marriage it can be said that it is a ceremony in which a ring is put on the finger of the lady, and through the nose of a man. Or, it can be said that matrimony is an institution in which a man loses his bachelor's degree, and his wife acquires a master's."

—By E. Simms Campbell

On Broadway —by Walter Winchell

We witnessed the President deliver his oration in the White House on his adventures in Paris with Khrushchev. A thrilling experience . . . Last time we enjoyed that go-light was his final speech before his election.

Thanks to former newspaperman Jim Hagerty . . . The prez's prez-chief is now 30 lbs. slimmer, especially around the beltline . . . "How do you get rid of thirty pounds?" he was asked . . . "You just suffer," was the grim retort . . . Andrew Tully, White House star for Scripps-Howard, is mamboning on clouds following Dr. Frank (CBS) Stanton's memo paid note about networking (perhaps) his "Treasury Agent" book which Desilu is rushing into T. V. production. (Our next network narrating chore) . . . Bob Endors, the producer, will give it "The Untouchables" quality, etc. . . The nation's editors and the people would be shocked to know the name of a blood relative of a Presidential hopeful who is peddling influence to protect a tv friend.

About 7 minutes before the President went on the air James Hagerty motioned to this spectator to follow him. "A man wants to see you," said Hagerty ushering us into Mr. Eisenhower's presence . . . "Hello, Mr. President," we exclaimed like a schoolboy . . . "I read your column on Mr. Khrushchev, very good," he complimented . . . "Thank you very much," we gushed. "Two congressmen told me they plan putting it into the Congressional Record" . . . "You nervous about going on?" we inquired . . . "Should I be?" like chuckled . . . "All of us on the air," we told him, "get a little butterflyish as air-time approaches. Don't we, Mr. Montgomery?" Meaning Robert Montgomery, the President's friend and teevie director . . . "You have a punchy line in your speech," we said. "The one about having to be suspicious about enemies, who used peace negotiations as Pearl Harbor felt" . . . "I'm afraid," the President said, "the speech is too long, 22 minutes" . . . "Oh, no, it isn't!" we told him. "This is the night the people can't get enough of what you have to say" . . . We told him he better than ever . . . That the sparkle in his eye was something to see . . . "You look like a man," we said, leaving, "which you are!"

William Taub (promoter of the ill-fated Josephine Baker show in Los Angeles) phoned us to say he had a story-to-vit—that we were right "all the time" . . . We suggested he report it "to the nearest district attorney or FBI agent" . . . We return to H'wood soon to be Guest of Honor at the annual affair for St. Ann's Foundation, which gives complete medical treatment and rehabilitation to "at least six hundred under-mothers" yearly . . . Joan Leslie and Loretta Young are among the stars who serve this worthy cause. The institution is Catholic. But it takes care of unwed mothers, no matter their race, color or creed. We are honored they asked us to serve . . . The Runyon Fund Comm., embraces the Bklyn. Internal Revenue employees for the generous donations . . . The new White House press pass is in color . . . Cong. Zelenko (N.Y.) used this in a speech: "A man in public life who wishes to reach the people is like a bee gathering honey. The names of the bees that get the honey are Be Humble, Be Reasonable, Be Sincere and Be Yourself."

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

What Is Art?

Mr. John F. Hill Editor, The Daily Record

Dear Sir: Now that the rainy season is almost over, it will soon be time for the outdoor art exhibits to make their appearances. I would like to plaintively ask, "What is art?"

I used to be naive enough to think that art was any creation of beauty that one appreciated, but I have found that this is a hopelessly out-dated way of thinking, and I am beginning to wonder if one is supposed to enjoy art at all.

I had heard that Cullen Yates' work was considered a fine example of local art, so I went to see his painting of Delaware Water Gap, and I must admit that to my untutored eye it looked like a hopelessly dreary anachronism, sort of the thing you see hanging in railway waiting rooms, and all that was missing was the locomotive coming around the bend.

This wouldn't have been so bad, but I found it was an unforgivable breach of taste to say this to any traditionalist for fear of being labeled something so opposed to the social order that one was practically an Anti-christ, and dangerously bordering on Communism.

Swinging to the other extreme, I find that if you cannot get the message in some abstract or impressionistic work of art, you are a square, a reactionary, a moron, and a regular Babbitt. While viewing modern art, I have found that it is absolutely essential to look intelligent and profound and hope that the slightly dazed vacancy in your eyes doesn't show through. To these artists it is always wise to say, "I dig you the most, Dad," and beat a hasty retreat. If there were any cohesion among the groups of painters, it might be possible for some sort of sense to emerge, but I am not the only one who doesn't know what he is talking about. If artists themselves can't agree upon what is art, what are we poor spectators to think?

AF Readies 'Strike' Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP)—A striking force of about 120 planes will be flown to Thailand, the Philippines and Formosa next week as a "training exercise," the Air Force said Friday night.

A Defense Department spokesman asked if the training exercises were related to the summit failure, replied: "It has been planned for at least six months."

The official announcement said the maneuver is similar to others held periodically to test the ability of the tactical air force to deploy over long distances quickly if faced by an emergency.

The force will include F100 Super Sabers and F101 reconnaissance jets, in addition to tanker planes and cargo aircraft.

The planes will begin leaving California June 1 for Clark Air Base in the Philippines. The entire force is scheduled to return to the United States in about 15 days.

Art Lecture Set Today At Center

WAYNE V. Anderson, a lecturer at Columbia University, will give a free public lecture at 8:15 p.m. today in the Pocono Art Center on "The Difference Between the Form of Nature and the Form of Art."

Anderson, recently appointed lecturer for the next year, will conduct art classes at the center, above the J. C. Penney Store, during the Summer for beginners and advanced artists. Information may be obtained by calling HA 1-2049.

Most Advanced

Anderson's conclusion on the question he will discuss is that "abstract expressionism is historically the most advanced artistic approach of our time. But this does not mean that it is the best approach."

Anderson then concludes: "All art is abstract in that it is a transformation of raw seeing into an artistic conception; all art is representational in that it presents the artist's own interpretation."

More Natural

"It is natural for young artists to take up the abstract idiom, but it is more natural for each individual to seek his own means for the expression of a personal vision. If we believe this, then all controversy about abstraction and representation will be futile. What is most important is that we recognize the common artistic substance of each and allow as many individual differences in art as we do between humans."

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Well, we had one bonus day of good weather when the forecast was for rain. Now everybody's got their fingers crossed for the weekend, for various and sundry reasons of their own.

The teenagers need some pretty hot sun to stop their teeth from chattering when they come out from that traditional first-swim-of-the-season.

Office workers need some sun to brown up their legs so they can discard stockings for the summer. Grandmothers are praying for sunshine to relieve the strain of so many visiting grandchildren cooped up indoors.

None of which reasons has the slightest connection with the original purpose of Memorial Day, which was to honor the soldiers and sailors killed in this Civil War. Later it was broadened to include the dead of all of the country's wars, and by association all of those who no longer live.

Traffic jams have replaced the original traffic speeches which were all day; picnics, golf, trips, fishing and ball-games have largely replaced the family visits to the cemetery.

We gain —and we lose — by the transaction. What we lose is the sense of continuity of family life. Like "walking the bounds" in the olden days, when once a year the sons walked the boundaries of the farm with their father so that they knew where their land ended and their neighbors began, there was good in having the children playing around the cemetery while their parents cut the grass away from the headstones and planted the geraniums on the grave of great-grandfather and reviewed the family tree, and recalled again the personalities, the quirks, the stories of their ancestors.

We gain a holiday for the living — who have to go on living, no matter how much of their hearts lie buried. But do try and do that, will you? Keep on living. I mean. Don't get drowned, or run over. But I hope you do have a chance to get sunburned.

The Wyckoff Shopper
"the friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Monday is Memorial Day, and a great many persons will either be entertained or be entertaining. This in turn means that a great many persons will be either giving or receiving gifts . . . and here at Wyckoff's we have many suggestions for saying "thank you" in a way as inexpensive or lavish as you please.

If your host and hostess are persons who "have everything" the problem of gift selection can be troublesome. But even so, we have ideas that are distinctive here at Wyckoff's. We have, for instance, just received a shipment of real art objects from Africa. These are of wood—many types—hand carved by African Christians. The selection includes giraffes, elephants, elands, lions, the figures of people, etc. In some the grain of the wood is positively exquisite, and all are very reasonably priced. The least expensive are 1.50, I believe . . . the most expensive 12.50 for bookends. Any one of these pieces would be ideal for the knick knack shelf, the desk, or as a conversation piece on a living room table.

Glassware is another item that is almost always welcome. In crystal it is rich and adaptable. In color, it is spirit lifting and gay. As a decorative item it is unbeatable, whether you select it in the form of a huge bottle for the patio or hearth, or in graceful decanters or small bottles designed to do nothing more than catch the light and delight the senses. Some of our newest glassware comes from Sweden, and ranges in price from 1.98 to 12.00. The 12.00 vase is of flawless crystal at least one-half inch thick, cool as an ice cube, and etched with a marine design. The 1.98 vase is in lovely color full-blown at the bottom, with a tall, narrow neck designed to accommodate one or possibly two buds. In the really large decanters we have some of the most wondrous shades of blue you have ever seen, along with other colors that are perfect for accenting a room's decor.

Candy is, of course, an ever-popular gift for the hostess, and we can mention just about every famous brand as being available right here at Wyckoff's. Ask me my favorite, and I'd have a hard time deciding between them . . . Russell Stover is always fresh and delicious. Schrafft's is appealing too—in fact there are Schrafft peanut clusters on my desk right now, and everyone's dipping into them with a great show of delight. Whitman's Sampler always recalls my first serious beau who never failed to bring me a box when he came to call. There's a box at home this minute, brought from New York the other evening by my gal-livanting 12-year-old daughter.

A really fashion conscious woman might appreciate a handbag as her "thank you" gift. Bea Gorgy has lovely one's of faille under plastic with marvelous quilted "still life" decorations (priced at 7.98 here and 12.50 on the boardwalk shops of many popular seaside resort towns) . . . of leather in white, beige, and bone . . . of the new marshmallow plastic that looks for all the world like precious leather . . . of imported brocade-type fabrics (really luxurious!) . . . and of basketry smartly decorated. Some of these (marked down from 7.98 to 5.00) open at the side, are amply large to hold all manner of wallets and accessories, and, being imported from Spain, are gaily and imaginatively decorated. Pair them with one of the amusing 2.98 Italian beach hats from Maudie Walton's department, and the wearer will feel a zest for life she's never known before!

As for the 50-star flag you will wish to show above your garden this Memorial Day, do see our fine selection by Defiance. In all sizes, made for all weather conditions of hunting that will wear forever, prices vary greatly but are very reasonable. One last invitation . . . whatever your holiday needs, shop WYCKOFF'S TODAY, then "have a happy!"

Schoonover, Imbt, Mack Win Honors

Bill Schoonover and Bruce Imbt of Stroud Union High School and Ron Mack of Bangor High School, have been selected on the High School All-American squad of the Wigwam Wisemen of America.

Schoonover, who has decided to go to Syracuse University and Mack, who is being sought by Wake Forest, North Carolina and Montana State, both were All-state gridlers this fall.

Only 44 of the hundreds of boys picked on the Wigwam squad will be invited to play in the group's all-star game this summer in the Southwest. Each candidate is required to fill out a questionnaire which will be used by the Wisemen in making their game selections.

Mack is the second Slater in two years to be picked by the Wisemen, an Oklahoma City sports group, which polls every newspaper in the country for its selections. Last year, Bangor quarterback Frank Butz was picked on the club.

Butz and Evans Get Offers

Butz, who spent a semester at West Point, appears to be heading for the University of Wichita. And Larry Evans, a guard on the Bangor club this year, has an offer from Miami (Fla.) University.

Kart Racing grabs the spotlight in the area this weekend. The Pocono Kart Course will hold races Sunday and Monday and Allentown's Dorney Park will also sponsor a two-day program.

The Pocono Kart Course will run a 50-mile (200-lap) race with a LeMans start at 2 p. m. Monday. Junior heats will kickoff the Memorial Day program at 11 a. m. Sunday's 18-race card gets the green flag at 1 p. m.

Dorney Park events, expected to attract 150 karts from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland start at 2 p. m. both days.

President Proclaims Little League Week

President Dwight D. Eisenhower has set aside June 13-19 as National Little League Week.

National Little League Week will be culminated by the observance of Federation Day. Each community has been invited to set aside one day during the week. Local leagues annually join forces in support of the Little League Foundation, a non-profit organization to insure the future of the program.

Foundation funds are used to provide better facilities for training, more research and other aid necessary to meet growth demands of Little Leagues.

"New Rules of Golf for 1960" a pocket sized booklet produced by United States Rubber Co. is available without charge at golf shops.

It includes the rule changes in effect for 1960, such as ball lost or out of bounds, an unplayable lie, playing a provisional ball, lifting or cleaning the ball and dropping the placing balls.

Warrior runaway, so he can work most of his pitchers in the Alumni Day contest.

"I want to throw Webb Michael if possible," says Ockershausen. "He has been having trouble finding the plate this year but in the last game he looked good, although the umpires weren't giving him the low pitches."

Tom Rider, the club's leading hitter won't be in the opening line-up.

Favored In "500" Race Ward-Stevenson Entry

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A minor change was made Friday in Monday's lineup for the 4th 500-mile auto race, but Eddie Sachs, Jim Rathmann and Rodger Ward still will lead the hazardous start in the chase for a third of a million dollars.

Dempsey Wilson of Hawthorne, Calif., who took over the Bryant Special after Jimmy Daywalt resigned as driver, was moved to last (33rd) place in the starting lineup as a safety precaution. Chief Steward Harlan Fongler explained Wilson is unfamiliar with the car.

Poor Readjustment

Daywalt, from Indianapolis, earned 26th starting position in time trials but quit in dissatisfaction with the car after tuneup runs Wednesday. The former holder of the race 250-mile record said mechanics had readjusted the car to the point where he could not get within five miles an hour of his 143.25 qualifying speed.

Daywalt is the first driver to resign in 13 years.

Pirates Get Vinegar Bend From Cards

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Friday night they have acquired pitcher Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell and utility infielder-outfielder Dick Gray from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for a pitcher to be named later and a minor leaguer.

The Pirates gave the Cards Julian Javier, a second baseman with the Pirates' Columbus team in the International League.

Gray Farmed

The Pirates said Gray will go to Columbus, which purchased his contract as part of the deal. Javier will report to the Cards immediately. Mizell will report to the Pirates immediately.

General Manager Joe L. Brown of the Pirates said he is giving up "one of the most brilliant prospects in the minor leagues" in Javier.

"I'm shooting everything for this year," Brown said.

The 500 draws a crowd upward of 200,000 without stimulation of illegal betting, but the Indianapolis News published its annual odds quotations Friday. It listed defending champion Ward, Indianapolis, and former AAA national champion Chuck Stevenson, Garden Grove, Calif., as team entry favorites at 5-1.

Ward and Stevenson will drive for Robert C. Wilke of Milwaukee in a pair of Watson racers labeled Leader Card Specials, Ward's car is new; Stevenson has Ward's 1959 winner.

Birds Take First

NEW YORK (AP) — A new giant-sized catcher's glove helped Clint Courtney avoid passed balls Friday as Hoyt Wilhelm, Baltimore's knuckle ball artist, pitched the Orioles to a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

The victory boosted the first place Orioles a half game ahead of the Cleveland Indians, who were rained out in Detroit. However, the two clubs were tied at .600 in the percentage column.

Breeding Doubles

Marv Breeding's ground rule double that bounced into the left field stands scored the first two Baltimore runs off Art Ditmar in the fifth. An infield out and Gene Woodling's single scored Breeding with the third run of the inning.

The Yanks finally got to Wilhelm for a run in the sixth when Mickey Mantle walked and later scored on Roger Maris' single.

Maris led off the ninth with a double to right. Berra's single scored Maris but the next three went down in order.

PROPER STANCE — Jack Weingart, Tamiment-in-the-Poconos pro uses golf club on the group to show proper alignment of feet. Feet are parallel with the line of flight of the ball. (Staff Photos By Prins)

FALSE HOPES — Many golfers believe that they will prevent slices if they turn their feet to the left. From this stance, however, the golfer only increases the chances of slicing the ball, as club face will cut across the ball.

Feet Placement Add To Slicer's Woes

By Jack Weingart

Golf Professional
Tamiment-in-the-Poconos

THE WAY the golfer stands, in the way he hits the ball.

Too many hookers and slicers try and compensate for their troubles by turning away from the line of flight of the ball.

A common belief of the slicers is that if they turn their feet toward the left, they will either cut down on the slice or the ball will start out to the left and if it slices, will still stay in the fairway.

And the more the golfer slices, the more he turns to the left.

Increases Slice
The turning or incorrect placement of the feet only increases the chance of slicing the ball, as the club face has to cut across the ball in that stance.

Hookers are guilty of almost the same mistakes, except they line their feet up facing to the right.

If the golfer is having trouble with a slice, he should face not to the left but to the right. With that stance, the chance of cutting across the ball is even find he is getting a slight hook on his tee shot.

Hookers should line their feet to the left of the line-of-flight, allowing for more of an outside-in swing.

Analomink Needs 2 Wins For Pocono League Lead

ANALOMINK gets a long-shot chance to move into first-place in the Pocono Mountain League this weekend.

The loop has booked eight games for the Sunday-Monday Memorial Day Holiday.

Man, 85, Set To Start New Career As Lecturer

MILLERSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Roger Harley became a bachelor of science in education Friday, 68 years after he took his first teaching job and aimed for a high degree.

And at 85, the keen-witted Harley is ready to start a new stage of a long and many-sided career. He intends to go in for lecturing. Harley, who comes from Morgan, W. Va., was graduated from Millersville State College in ceremonies viewed by his son, Dr. John B. Harley, who teaches in the University of West Virginia medical school; his daughter Mrs. Jackson P. Sickles, of Coral Gables, Fla., and five grandchildren. Mrs. Sickles' husband is on the University of Miami faculty.

First College

Harley returned to Millersville--his first college--last fall, determined to get the degree. He pitched into campus life with the zest of a far younger man. He rose between 5 and 6 a. m. studied while many others played, lived in the men's dormitory, became pally with young fellows, and thoroughly enjoyed himself.

It was required that he take only three subjects. He chose educational psychology, English and History. He got A's in all three. Harley thinks his mind slowed down a bit over the years. "That's a laugh," said a professor. "He was one of the best of us, as quick-witted as they come."

Why should a man that old bother to get a degree?

"What's age got to do with it?" he replied. "If you want something badly enough you go after it at any age, assuming you are able physically to do so."

As for younger blades, he feels "a good many of today's college students are out for a good time and it might behoove them to be more serious-minded and purposeful. But he's not taking any cracks at youth. He beamed on the youngest graduate, 20-year-old Georgia Lukens, of Croydon, Buc Bucks County, Pa., who was ranged alongside him for contrast.

"All this started back in Yellow Springs, Md.," he related. "I was a slip of a boy then, but when anyone gave me a book I simply thought I was supposed to learn everything in it. I've never lost the habit--nor the desire."

Started in 1892 Harley started teaching in Frederick, Md., in 1892. Later he attended Millersville State Normal School, the forerunner of the college. After two years schooling he resumed teaching, first in West Virginia, later in other places. He quit teaching in 1936 and for over 20 years worked at many jobs, among them bookkeeping in a hotel, as an income tax consultant, and the representative of a religious book publisher.

A tall, thin, white-haired man, who dresses with extreme care, Harley plans to visit his son in West Virginia for a couple of months, then get to work lecturing. "I think I'm going to miss college, though," he said.

Prayer for Memorial Day

Tho' I am dead, grieve not for me with tears,

Think not of death with sorrowing and fears.

I am so near that every tear you shed

Touche and tortures me, tho' you think me dead;

My soul is lifted upward to the light.

Laugh and be glad for all that life is giving

And I, tho' dead, will share your joy of living.

Although he's gone from this life. Now our Dad's gone to rest. Our memories, that our daddy was the best. He lives on that Heavenly Shore now, and 4 of his children too. We miss him here so much yet, some times it makes us blue. But someday Mom, and the rest of us, when our life on earth shall end. We will all join Dad on that heavenly shore, and be together again.

Dear Abby

There Are Such Things

Dear Abby: Please don't think I am stupid but this question has to be answered and I am dependi n g on you.

My daughter is eleven and she is maturing rapidly. I have tried, but I can't seem to find the right words. She is a bright girl and I think it would be easier if she would read it in a book. Are there any books for eleven-year-olds on this subject?

JEANNIE IN THE POLKA DOT BIKINI

Dear Jeannie: I think you can consider yourself "disengaged." A man who seriously intends to marry a girl doesn't have to be tracked down and asked to repeat the proposal.

Dear Abby: I doubt if there is a perfect cook than I am. I am a perfect cook and I am not lazy. But how I hate to cook!

TONGUED-TIED

Dear Tongue-Tied: Ask your local librarian. You will be delighted with the assortment of books written especially for the junior Miss on this subject.

Dear Abby: To make a long story short, I am engaged to a guy who said he lives in Chicago, but I don't know his address. He was in the Navy and we met in Florida when I was on my vacation. I would like to get a hold of him to find out if he still wants to get married. I have some of his clothes he left at my place. Please hurry you - answer. I don't have all year.

Every man I talk to about this seems to think that if a woman can't cook, she isn't worth marrying. I'd like some opinions on this.

CAN'T COOK

Dear Can't: Anyone who can read can cook. What you need is an inspiration. Don't advertise your faults. Find the man first. If you love him, you'll learn. If he loves you, he'll be patient. Few women are fortunate enough to get a man who will not only bring home the bacon but will cook it himself; or hire someone to do it.

Confidential To "Confirmed Bachelor In The Office": Bachelors often get tangled up with several women in their frantic effort to avoid getting tied up to one. Beware!

Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Waring To Get First Apollo Award

FRED WARING, who with his Pennsylvanians has been entertaining the public for over forty years, will receive the first Apollo Award, presented by the Professional Music Men, Inc., song-pluggers organization, for "meritorious contribution toward the enhancement of the nation's songs and music."

The presentation will be made at the PMM's annual outing, June 16, at Grossinger's New York.

A statement from PMM said Waring is "a man who has made the song so interesting and the music so fascinating that his inspiring and imaginative arrangements are universally used in colleges, churches and wherever group singing is performed."

Harvester Sales Increase

FRANK W. JENKS, president of The International Harvester Company, announced yesterday that sales ending April 30 were $693,804,000 as compared with $598,543,000 for the same period last year.

He noted that the net income was $29,427,000 and had dropped from $31,383,000 and said, "The reason for the drop was attributed to the increased costs traceable to low manufacturing schedules during the second quarter initiated primarily for the purpose of balancing inventories."

The six months earnings equaled $1.88 a share on 14,122,689 shares outstanding.

Oil Company Outlook Good

STOCKHOLDERS of the Standard Oil Company were told by company officials the operation of the company and the outlook for the oil industry over a long period looked favorable.

Leo D. Welch, chairman of the board, told the stockholders that already signs of corrective processes are at work and that the company is getting along reasonably well.

Monroe J. Rathbone, president and the chief executive officer, said he expected an increase of 4 to 5 per cent in the domestic demand for oil and oil products this year.

Rathbone added that there was much evidence that the industry is on the verge of a revolution that will transfer our world more rapidly and completely than the industrial revolution in the 19th century. He did not say what the revolution was.
